Ex. 6 Personal Privacy (PP) we have received your comment. I am copying Kip Tyler of our staff as he is compiling comments on the draft Kampachi permit.

Florida has 1,200 miles of coastline. Plus the state depends on its fresh water resources. Any economic venture to endanger our water, whether salt or fresh, demands rejection.

A fish farm will produce tons of fish poop. Where will that poop go? Do you want it floating to your coast? I doubt it.

And would you feel comfortable feeding poop infested fish to your children? Think about the Mekong River in VietNam. Fish farms nest on the poop infested shore. They have produced tons of inexpensive fish. Do you dare buy this fish?

Please reject the notion of fish farms in our water resources. The dangers of red tide and other infections far outweigh any benefits.

Thank you.
